This panel will be a soup to nuts presentation on how to publish your own novel online. This presentation will go over the things a self-published author is expected to handle in the process of bringing their book to print, and then will continue on to the process of actually getting your work published via an online book seller such as Amazon or Barnes & Noble.

Things like editors, copy editors, proof readers, cover artists, formatting for submission, POD services, price points, and advertising will be covered.
